

How to learn life-skills...

If you could change in the way that you think, and it would help your loved one with a developmental disability learn life skills at a rate faster than they ever have before... would you say yes to that?

Well, it turns out that life skills aren't learned in a program. Life skills and independence are learned under our own roof and in real-life opportunities.

In this video, I share the #1 thing that you need to change so that your loved one can grow their life skills and independence.
